Top floor, quiet, and priced to get you into Windsor Park for under $190,000 — this one-bedroom condo is where a first-time buyer stops renting, or an investor picks up a property with a real track record. It's a walk-up building, so top floor means a few flights of stairs — but it also means no one stomping around above you. The kitchen and primary bedroom each carry a custom wallpaper accent — a stylish, colourful touch most listings at this price point don't bother with. The bedroom closet is the kind you actually forget to fill. The building's done the hard part: roof, balconies, boiler, and structural work are complete or wrapping up this year, backed by a condo corporation that's well managed and financially sound. Condo fees sit at $433.15/month. This unit has been a long-term revenue generator, and vacant possession is available August 1 — move in yourself or hand the keys to a new tenant on day one.
